

Mentoring and Coaching Christian Leaders

In today's fast changing world, Christian ministry leaders in the UK and elsewhere are struggling to respond to the formidable challenges that confront them:

- How to exercise visionary leadership in a unique and distinctive Christian way
- How to lead their ministries through times of critical change
- How to develop effective Trustee Boards that will enrich the work of their charities
- How to recruit, develop and lead staff members who will share the vision and values of the ministry
- How to turn groups of people into effective teams
- How to take an effective and fruitful role in fundraising, marketing and public relations for their ministry
- How to benefit from the latest research and thinking on leadership and management issues.

The list of challenges goes on and on.

Despite the slowly growing numbers of MBAs and other leaders with business backgrounds serving in Christian ministries, the multitude of tasks confronting today's Christian chief executives and other senior leaders can still be dizzying if not downright intimidating.

Facing a veritable wilderness of challenges far different from those for which they have often been trained, Christian leaders are increasingly turning to seasoned coaches and consultants to serve as trusted guides in the new and occasionally inhospitable terrain in which they now find themselves in.

To minimize the dangers and risks associated with this wilderness travel - and to increase the sense of adventure for Christian leaders without the hazards of going 'solo' - McConkey • Johnston international is now offering Mentoring and Coaching Services to Christian ministry leaders in addition to its longstanding array of consulting services.

This new mentoring and coaching service is tailored to fit the distinctive needs of individual leaders and ministries, and includes scheduled face-to-face or Skype meetings, tailored coaching sessions and regular email communications.
